

Dear Hiring Manager,

I hope this letter finds you well. My name is Gopal Kumar, and I am writing to express my keen interest in the Media Relations and Outreach Manager position at the Brookings Institution. With a strong background in communications, media relations, and a passion for economic policy, I am confident that my skills and experience align perfectly with the responsibilities and objectives of this role.

Having recently completed my Master's in Industrial Engineering & Operations Research (FinTech) from the prestigious University of California, Berkeley, I have honed my analytical abilities, quantitative research skills, and data-driven mindset. As an Associate in Economic Strategy & Policy Research at JP Morgan, I supported data-driven financial product development, co-authored research notes with substantial client engagement, and played a key role in securing top rankings for the Global Fixed-Income research team. I also led the automation strategy as an Analyst in Automation Strategy & Analytics, delivering cutting-edge analytics products and achieving remarkable improvements in productivity for the research team.

My technical expertise spans a wide range of languages, tools, and databases, including Python, R, VBA, Django, Excel, Tableau, and Bloomberg, making me adept at interpreting complex economic research findings and translating them into engaging content for diverse audiences.

Regarding the Media Relations and Outreach Manager position, I am excited about the opportunity to contribute to the Economic Studies program's impactful research and policy recommendations. As someone who thrives on developing and executing strategies, I look forward to collaborating with the communications team to elevate the program's media presence, interact with top-tier opinion editors, and foster strong relationships with policymakers and stakeholders. With experience in media relations, press releases, and event publicity, I am well-equipped to drive awareness and amplify the impact of the program's research and events.

In my leadership roles, such as being the Affinity Group Leader for FinTech at UC Berkeley and the Secretary of House of Socio-Cultural Affair at IIT Patna, I have demonstrated excellent organizational skills, initiative, and a collaborative approach to achieve collective goals.

I am excited about the opportunity to contribute to Brookings, a renowned and influential think tank committed to addressing society's challenges through rigorous research and innovative policy recommendations. As a highly motivated individual with a genuine interest in economic issues and their implications, I am confident that I can bring valuable insights and dedication to the Media Relations and Outreach Manager role.

Thank you for considering my application. I am eager to further discuss how my skills and experiences align with the needs of Brookings' Economic Studies program. Please find my detailed resume attached. I look forward to the possibility of contributing to the impactful work at the Brookings Institution.

Sincerely,

Gopal Kumar

gopal.kumar@berkeley.edu